HONOKONO, DECEMBER 15TH, 1870.

THE letter which is published this day from "A Merchant," with reference to the application of the "Co-Hong system" to the trade several points which are worthy of carpful consideration. Any practical proposal for a solution of the difficulty which has been so long discussed, cannot be looked upon otherwisethanas valuable, as its consideration must at least have the effect of clearing up the subject, and setting forth its true merits. It way, it may be fairly hoped something will problem which has so long balled both merchants and diplomatists.

The old Co-Hong system vocal performances of both Operatio and good was really nothing more than a plan by which foreigners were permitted to trade on the same basis as natives—in fact, it was a solution of the very problem which we are now endeavouring to solve. The system of trade existing throughout the whole of China, is that of licensed guilds; and, in order to admit Europeans to trade, nothing can be more simple than for the Chinese to license certain Hongs to trade with the foreigners. to whom it is impossible to grant licenses in plainant, and stated that there were thirty-four of whom one was foretold to be the dopument us. the same way, on account of their system of were on night duty, and twenty four on day short space, a prophecy is uttered that when I listened with great delight — Counter; trade not admitting the formation of association of associ tions, to whom such privileges could be ac. torded. The regults, however, have been far vantages which have been obtained by its abolition are such that it would be desirable. in respect to an extension of commercial relations, to insist upon a rigid adherence to the principles of commercial intercourse last

It will be obvious from the above considerations that the Co-Hong system would fit in admirably with Chinese customs. All the verations questions of local taxation would be done away! and if the right of residence coupled with an adjustment of the transit dues, were conceded, there would not be anything which would cause the local officials longer to stand out against permission being accorded to foreigners to trade in the country. A difficulty, however, arises at the point noticed by our correspondent-which is that at which the Co-Hong system was originally found to be defective. The mandaring would be likely to abuse their pri vilege of taxing the Guilds, and would heap on the duties to such an extent that in the course of time they would succeed in almost annihilating the trade. But against this, it bas to be borne mind that the abolition of the Co-Hong system has not really deprived the Mandarina of their opportunity of taxing the trade, nor. has it, as was anticipated, prevented the Chinose from forming themselves into Guilds, and obtaining a monopoly of the traffic. It the Ordinance, and found that he could not spirit of window has uttered; after this and is notorious that at the present day this local officials obtain large contributions from foreign trade actually in the Treaty portar and so far from free trade with foreigners purposes of trade and gain it pleasus them to of separation, according to such differences as having been established, the natives generally are as little able to trade with Europeans as ever. It is true that a larger number come to foreigners' offices to buy and sell produce; but they are for the most part that protection against the gross insult which merely middle men, and there is not one of them who is not either a member of one of the Guilds, or has not an understanding with them. Thus the abolition of the Co-Hong system has produced little or no good in the direction in which this was anticipated; and it is indeed quite a question. whother the old plan, which brought the foreign merchant into direct contact with substantial Hong morehants was not on the whole more advantageous than that at present in force, which introduces them to a swarm of go betweens, who have tended very | we have already attained in the way of trading | ingenuousness. little to enlarge the trade, while they have commended and forced, but we claim in this article to assault certain feeble prejudices in favour of women which have their foundation upon romantic rigmurole. For instance, where ing. Still we answer nothing, because, were is there a greater fallacy than in the belief that we either to deny or admit, it would be equally women weigh nothing? Yet in romance, oven disbelieved. To me, any another. of this modern day, we read constantly of heroes may nanimously rushing off with fainting maidens from blazing houses, or more feluniously "carting" them on to their shoulders for are as plain as they can be." But to this also purposes of revengeful abduction. Let any one our only reply is silence—premising here, how-out of training, or under 6ft, of height and ever, that if our great Perfume depended on with proportionate strength, attempt to run any two single flowers, its breath would be nway with fairly well-composed girl of eighteen poor indeed. "Yes, yes!" exclaimed a third; or twenty, and give us his opinion of the provess of these variated knights. Well, well, we will not be so rade as hood is not to be carried at all Even at slight to contradict a lady (nearly all these queries girl will weigh a hundred pounds, and Rudolph | are from the ladies), but we simply wonder or Horatio will stagger under her levely but they don't discover the soft and delicious fra-walk. There are plenty of buxom girls who weigh up to a hundred and seventy pounds.

When the -victimized But the truth is, that the many floral extracts Squallina faints on the stage, the robust which enter into the composition of the true baritone takes care that the evanouissement shall be accomplished as close to the wing as possible. He knows what La Squallina weight by the sad experience of rehearants. Let any of our readers curry his sister (he will lare so exactly and perfectly blended together probably prefer his cousin) up three flights of that it is quite impossible to detect the distincstairs without stopping, and forward to us tive edear of any single one. The effect of the his sentiments on the occasion. Women weigh combination is the most agreeable and refresh-

Another popular belief is that women eat no- enjoy it the more." But this can be said only thing. It is, of course, conceded that they of the MURRAY & LANMAN'S FLORIDA sustain life by the consumption of some article WATER. There are others who offer for sale of nonrishment, but enting in the wholesale acceptation of the word is supposed to be foreign to female nature. This fallacy is found burny & Lanman's fand buyers should always and sustained by women themselves, who during the affected period of their lives, cuitivate small appetites as being comme if faut LANMAN & KEMP, New York, and a sign of semi-angelic construction. When this perpicions nonsense is conscientiously carried out, the results upon the would-be augels are squalor, red noses, certain loss of vigour general limpness, and some other unpleasant serticles. But, as a rule, the smallest appointes at the fashionable tables are exhibited by those shrewd girls whose natural and healthy wants. have been thoroughly appeared by secret stuffing. Need we refer our readers to the historical poem concerning Violante in the Pantry, gnawing of a mutton bone, or remind them how she gnawed it, how she chawed it, when she found herself alone ? All this is a direct deceit, however, practised upon unsophisticated buchelors, who, when they have made the dainty creatures theirs, find out by the butcher's book and the ocular proof what sturdy trenchetwomen they have married. Watch a healthy girl at supper, during the intervals of dancing; she consumes by instalments four times as much as her partner, and seems, and is, none the worse for it. We have touched on women's capacity in this direction in a former article, and may therefore dismiss its discussion bere briefly by the statement that women eat in proportion to their weight, as much as men, and and all Ulcerous and Eruptive Disorders me no more fairies in this respect than in the beyond the reach of competition. The world matter of weight. Other failucies regarding knows that its effects in such maladies are, to women are, that they must always have the front seat; that they may strike a man brutal-ly without retaliation in kind; that a man must ride outside a vehicle in drenching rain to "oblige" her, she being a robust, hardy fabric, and he, perchance, a consumptive, coldcatching subject; that she may cheat at cards and not be turned out of a game, that she may, lose her bets but never be expected to pay, that alse may be muliciously rude to the opposite sex without having her ware soundly boxed for it, that ahe may put questions to them regarding private and special matters without being considered impertment; in brief that she may enjoy all the privileges o men without insurring the attendant responsipilities. All this is monstrous, and we protest on behalf of our own sex against it. The whole question resolves itself into this proposition, that strength must not be made subservient to weakness The so-called chivalry of the Dark in Spaino and Summen, cannot be overrated and the Middle Ages degraded woman by During these seasons the human physique in clevating her into a dell, a puppet, who doled subjected to severe trials. It requires reinout a miserable blue ribbon for needles to forcement, it demands help, in order to withknock each other about for. The Greeks and stand the strain, We all know the debilitating Ramans elevated their women by respecting and dangerous tondency of their political functions, we have lowered our women by letting them dictate to us from a postthat the Female Reformers, who are at this day atruggling for equality or rights with man, seek to combut with the opposite sex. They ask for equality only, and do not desire to tyrannise, which is left solely to those woman who object to move politically, but aspire to conquer men by asserting the privileges of weakness. Men are good-humouredly contented to endure gross injustice from wonen, because they are upon themselves by permitting a latitude to Tome, the lives of thousands are in continual fecebleness; weakness indulged becomes a bully jeopardy from these prolific sources of disease, and a tyrant, and in the inge of this univer.
